VERMONT NOTES

The Vermont delegation in Congress recommended unanimously the appointment of the following named federal officers: For collector of internal revenue, Maj. Robert W. McCuen of Vergennes; for prohibition officer, Hon. Collins M. Graves of Bennington. The delegation stated that no decision with respect to federal appointments had been reached before these two recommendations.

Petitions in bankruptcy have been entered in the United States district court clerk's office by the firm of Orr Brothers, merchants of the village of McIndoes Falls, in the town of Barre, and by the members of the firm, Charles H. Orr and Leslie H. Orr, individually. The firm state in their petition that their debts total $7,165.94, with assets of $3,493.17. There is but one Burlington creditor, the Berry-Ball company, $32.29. The firm's largest creditor is the Citizens' Savings Bank and Trust company of St. Johnsbury, $2,750 for notes given since 1917 aggregating $2,750, most of which, if not all, are endorsed by others.

The Rev. Chauncey A. Adams, pastor of the Congregational church at Danville and formerly a pastor at Irasburg, has been appointed by Governor Hartness chaplain of the First Vermont Regiment National Guard. Before Adams enlisted early in the World war as ambulance driver with the French army. When the United States entered the war he was transferred to the American army and appointed chaplain of the 101st ammunition train which saw severe fighting. Before Books Were Plentiful.

The almanac and the family Bible constituted the home library some two hundred years ago. The weather predictions in the almanacs of 160 years ago were occasionally right, and when so proved in any locality, the fame of the predictor was proclaimed abroad, at the corner groceries and tavern bars of the land.

Settlement was made in the estate of John Bay.

Rev. H. B. Rankin was appointed guardian of John Hill, now in a hospital in Boston.

Eastern States Farm Organization.

Officials of Eastern States Farm Bureau Federation perfected an informal organization in their meeting at Trenton, N. J., on May 28. H. E. Taylor, executive committee member of the American Farm Bureau Federation, was elected president, and Frank App, secretary of the New Jersey Farm Bureau Federation, secretary.

Mr. App outlined the various activities conducted in the several states and suggested that mutual advantage would result from cooperation in working out portions of the state program. Secretary Fred D. Griggs, of the Massachusetts Farm Bureau, suggested uniform state laws as one of the major possibilities.

Alva Agee, of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture called attention to the readjustment of the present tax burden. He stated that many strong organizations were being organized everywhere in their power to shift the tax burden from business shoulders onto the shoulders of the common citizens. In his opinion the biggest function of the Farm Bureau Federation, county, state and national, this year, would be fulfilled if he said the Federation could truthfully state to its members that it had saved them more annually than several times the membership paid if this could be accomplished, leaving every other service of the organization clear gain to the membership. He stressed the importance of taking the responsibility back to the individual member and making him feel that he is a vital part of the organization.

Treasurer Charles E. Gurneels of the American Farm Bureau Federation, discussed the relationship of the County Farm Bureau to the Extension Service. He covered in detail the memorandum of agreement between the American Farm Bureau Federation and the States Extension Service. The opinion was entirely favorable to the memorandum after it had been discussed. Mr. Gurneels also presented the suggested uniform system of accounting.

The problem of relationships with cooperative organizations was rather fully discussed. The states expect to be guided by the attitude of the American Farm Bureau Federation in regard to relationships with cooperative commodity organizations that are or may be established.

G. Leland Green Heads Berry Schools.

G. Leland Green, a native of Irasburg, a graduate of Barton Academy and U. V. M., and now principal of the Berry schools near Rome, Ga., has been visiting friends and relatives hereabouts.

Mr. Green is an Orleans county boy of whom everyone is proud. After finishing his education he went into teaching and for several years was at the head of the Vermont State Agricultural school at Randolph Center. When the United States went into the World war Mr. Green went overseas as a Y. M. C. A. secretary and upon returning went south principally on account of the health of one of the children. He went to the Berry Boy's school at Mt. Berry, Ga., as instructor and his marked work has brought him the principalship of this remarkable institution.

The Berry Schools comprise two distinct schools, one for boys and one for girls and are located nearly a mile apart. The special work of these institutions is to educate the mountain white children of the south and these two schools have a student body of about 500 with a faculty and working force of more than 50 persons, education from the first grade to College preparatory work is carried on and the instruction is broad, including industrial, agricultural and religious work as well as academic.

Miss Martha Berry is the founder of the school and its genius today. Fees charged the students at these schools cover only a small part of the cost of running the school and the work is made possible only through the continuous sacrificial work of Miss Berry who has secured as trustees of the institution some of the prominent men of the nation, and finds willing contributors of substantial amounts to the great work this school is doing.

The importance of the position Mr. Green holds is not sensed until it is realized that the schools own a group of buildings numbering nearly two score and there are six thousand acres of land owned by the schools, 1000 acres of which is in cultivation. Mr. Green is given an automobile with which to carry on his work with dispatch. Besides being principal of the schools he is chairman of the executive committee and chairman of several of the other committees of the faculty.

EVANSVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. John Collins of Providence, R. I., are visiting Mrs. Collins' son, Everett Martin.

Mrs. G. H. Hunt and son, Warwick, and friend, David Gallup, are spending a week in camp at Willoughby lake.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cook of Burlington were recent guests of their brother, Rev. W. W. Cook, at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hilliard and two children of Orleans spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Della Hilliard.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Alger of Arlington, Mass., are spending their vacation at Mrs. Alger's sister, Mrs. A. E. Tracy.

Mrs. G. R. Fletcher has returned from Lowell, Mass., accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Geo. Sylvester, who will make her home here.

All ladies interested in the church are requested to meet at the church Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock sharp to elect a president and vice president for the next three months, also to appoint supper committees for same.

The ice-cream social held on F. S. Foster's lawn Tuesday evening was a very enjoyable event. The Junior band of Orleans, led by Mr. Bullard, furnished splendid music which was much appreciated by everyone present. David Boyle sang some songs which were much enjoyed. The entire proceeds of the evening were $49.55.

BASEBALL

Barton loses at St. J.

Barton could do nothing with Vitty at St. Johnsbury Wednesday and had to return home with the short end of a 7 to 0 score. Carter's work at short deserves honorable mention and relieved what was otherwise a drab game.
